Definitions

Partnership Working

The organisation defines a partnership as a formal working arrangement involving one or more independent bodies, from any sector, who share responsibility for agreeing and/or then delivering a set of planned actions and outcomes. A formal agreement is made by all partners to work together for specific outcomes.

In summary all partnerships will agree:-

- A shared strategic vision/objectives
- Resource availability/requirements
- Clear measurable outcomes
- Added value
- Risks
- Timescales for review or life of partnership

Partners should:

- Be independent bodies working willingly in collaboration with each other.
- Agree to co-operate and commit resources to achieve a common goal/s.
- Create a process by which to work together, to develop and implement and monitor a joint programme of work.
- Be prepared to share relevant information, risks and rewards.
- Recognise the statutory obligations of the organisation and its discretionary functions
- Be prepared to accept decisions made by the partnership within the agreed parameters

Entering into a new or existing partnership

The organisation will determine the suitability for entering into a formal partnership against the following criteria:

- How the work of the partnership contributes to the organisation's Corporate Strategy and Priorities.
- How the work of the partnership benefits service users, residents, businesses and visitors to the area.
- Will the partnership commit itself to Foresight's aims and objectives
- Are there arrangements in place to regularly monitor and report on the effectiveness of the partnership?
- Is there clarity on roles of appointed persons, reasons why they are on that partnership and what their remit is?

Foresight will go through a clear decision making process before committing itself to a partnership. Depending on the type of partnership proposed and commitment in respect of resources and time there are a number of routes that approval for entering into a partnership can take.

To reinforce the commitment all new and existing partnership will have a 'Statement of Commitment' signed by the Lead Officer from each organisation involved in the Partnership.

In respect of Foresight North East Lincolnshire Ltd, the statement will be counter-signed by the Chief Officer and/or the Chair of the organisation (if applicable).
